

ALLIES SLUGGING NAZIS BACK

Meandering Along the Main Stem

By WASH FAYETTE

"I guess they must smell 'em", said a local dealer as he saw the last of his day's supply of cigarettes vanish to a line that had formed in his place of business within a few minutes after his cigarettes were offered for sale.

As a matter of fact here is what really happened:

A woman saw the cigarettes, made a purchase (one pack to a customer) and stepped outside. She met a couple of her friends, and the friends wanted cigarettes.

She saw some other friends and the first two friends saw some of their friends after they had left the store, so that the friends, friends and friends soon were streaming in after cigarettes, which have been very scarce for the past two or three months, with no indication of improving.

Long after the scant supply had become exhausted, would-be cigarette buyers, all coming from the word passed out by the first customer, were still streaming into the store.

Is it any wonder some dealers have adopted the policy of selling cigarettes only to their regular customers?

The fields and the woods in many parts of Fayette County have been pretty well filled with hunters beginning last Friday when the pheasant and rabbit hunting season opened.

We have a mild but timely suggestion for sportsmen who expect to use Fayette County land for their hunting in urging that they make their motto "Safety First—Always."

In the interest of making and keeping hunting a safe sport the following ten commandments for hunters should be observed:

1. Treat every gun with the respect due a loaded gun. This is the cardinal rule of gun safety.

2. Carry only empty guns, taken down or with the action open, into your automobile, camp and home.

3. Always be sure that the barrel and action are clear of obstructions.

4. Always carry your gun so that you can control the direction of the muzzle even if you stumble.

5. Be sure of your target before you pull the trigger.

6. Never point a gun at anything you do not want to shoot.

7. Never leave your gun unattended unless you unload it first.

8. Never climb a fence or tree with a loaded gun.

9. Never shoot at a flat hard surface or the surface of water.

10. Do not mix gunpowder and alcohol.

NEW ARMY AND NAVY PROMISED TO FRENCH

PARIS, Nov. 20.—(AP)—General Charles de Gaulle, in his second radio "fireside chat" to the French people, promised last night that France within eight months would develop a great new army and navy.

Urging public support of the new "liberation" bond issue to strengthen France's position before the world, he reported coal production had risen from 244,000 tons weekly in September to 422,000 tons last week; that the Paris electric output increased tenfold since August 31 and was now nearly equal to the pre-war average and that 1,238 bridges and other vital structures on communications lines had been repaired.

Ohio Phone Strike Getting No Better

LOCAL SERVICE MAINTAINED BY DIAL SYSTEMS

Labor Board in Capital Is Studying Situation and Effect on War Effort

COLUMBUS, Nov. 20.—(AP)—A telephone operators' strike which spread to 26 Ohio towns in three days will be extended, a union spokesman said, to cities in the northeastern industrial section of the state today or tomorrow.

Meanwhile in Washington, War Labor Board experts studied the Ohio telephone operators' strike to determine gravity of its effects on war activities before deciding on a course of action.

Reports received in the nation's capital were that emergency and military calls are being handled despite the strike. Some concern was aroused over the possibility striking maintenance employees may interfere with continuance of essential service.

It appeared likely WLB may ask leaders of the Ohio Bell Telephone Company and the Ohio Federation of Telephone Workers, independent union, to come to Washington in an effort to get strikers to return to work.

Earl Culp, editor of the Ohio Federation of Telephone Workers Bulletin, said he expected operators, maintenance men and other workers to join the walkout by tomorrow in Akron, Canton and other northeastern Ohio centers.

He estimated 4,000 operators were on strike throughout the state, 1,300 of them in Cleveland. He said an additional 600 office workers were idle and that at least 1,200 other Ohio Bell Telephone Co. employees had walked out in the northeastern third of the state.

The strike began Friday in Dayton where the union announced the walkout was in protest against payment of expenses averaging $18.25 weekly, in addition to salary, for personnel brought in by the company from out of town. "Sympathy" strikes spread rapidly and workers in the steel-making center of Youngstown went out yesterday.

Harold Barber, company vice president in charge of public relations, said about 60 percent of federation workers involved in the dispute were on the job throughout the state yesterday, but that the test of effectiveness of the strike probably would come today when business picked up after the weekend.

The company reported 75 percent operator attendance in Dayton yesterday and said all military and emergency long distance calls were being handled. Local dial telephone systems were not affected.

The Regional War Labor Board in Cleveland has submitted the case to the national board for "appropriate action" and Barber said the company could do nothing until the federal agency acted.

A statement issued last night by union President R. G. Pollock said:

"There are 105 girls at the present time who have been transferred from throughout the state into the Dayton exchange."

Freezing of War Wages Scored By Boss of CIO

CHICAGO, Nov. 20.—(AP)—Philip Murray opened the seventh annual CIO convention today with scorching criticism of the War Labor Board for what he said was "evading its responsibility" to war workers whose wages it froze.

His annual report urged the CIO to continue the no-strike pledge for the duration of the war and suggested the Political Action Committee would be around for some time to come.

'Little Steel' Formula Revision in Prospect As Living Costs Go Up

Roosevelt Is Suggested as American Delegate to Proposed International Security Conference - - Congress
Still in Low Gear

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20.—(AP)—Several senators urged changing or dropping the "Little Steel" wage formula today following release of a special report to the White House on the advance in living costs.

The report, headed by the president's special committee to investigate the wartime rise in the cost of living, concluded that for the bulk of wage earners the increase was 29 to 30 percent over the level of January 1, 1941.

That is the base date for the Little Steel Formula, which limits general wage increases to 15 percent above those prevailing on that day.

"I think this calls for a revision of the formula," said Senator Pepper (D., Fla.), who is pushing a resolution to declare wages of less than 65 cents an hour substandard.

War Makes Difference
"The formula wasn't intended to be an arbitrary standard, but when enacted had a relation to a factual situation. Now due to forces inherent in a war the facts have changed, and the increase in living costs is shown to be 29 or 30 percent instead of 15. This also

26 YANKS KILLED IN SKYTRAIN CRASH

LONDON, Nov. 20.—(AP)—Six American soldiers were killed and four injured in the crash last night of a C-47 Skytrain troop carrier en route from England to France, Air Force headquarters announced today.

The Skytrain, a transport type that has carried thousands of men to battle, crashed near an 800-foot peak north of Brighton, in southwestern England. Six victims were taken to a nearby hospital, while two died and the others remained in serious condition.

"No cause has been found for the plain going out of control," Air Force headquarters stated.

REDS ADVANCE TOWARD AUSTRIA

Far to North, Baltic Battle
Flares Near Riga

(By the Associated Press)
Russian and American-made tanks, deepening the Soviet sweep around besieged Budapest along invasion routes into Austria and Czechoslovakia, were reported advancing today toward Lucene, key Nazi communications hub on the Slovak-Hungarian frontier.

Simultaneously, other Soviet tank and artillery forces brought the 25-mile sector of the trunk line between Budapest and Hatvan under heavy fire after capturing the village of Galgaheviz, 19 miles northeast of Budapest, a Moscow bulletin announced.

On the upper end of the 85-mile front moving on southern Slovakia, Marshal Rodion Y. Malinovsky's second Ukraine Army drove to within two miles of Miskolc, Hungary's fifth city.

In the Baltic, the Russians were reported by Berlin to have thrown three divisions of 30,000 men and strong tank forces against the Sworbe Peninsula, southwestern tip of Saare Island, dominating the entrance to the Gulf of Riga. The battle for Budapest, according to Berlin, entered a new phase with the Russians bringing up 35 infantry divisions, possibly 400,000 men on a siege arc east of the capital.

The German communiqué said the Russians had started a strong offensive against the 30 divisions trapped in Latvia after heavy artillery and air bombardments. The first wave of the drive was reported to have collapsed, but the Germans said heavy fighting continued with Soviet reinforcements.

German positions were broken into on the Sworbe Peninsula, the communiqué added.

Storm-drenched American troops threw back vicious Japanese counterattacks in the slow and bitter Leyte campaign of the central Philippines as these rapid-fire developments were announced on Pacific fronts today:

1. More than 45,000 Japanese have been killed or wounded on Leyte since the October 20 invasion—a ratio of nearly eight to one against American casualties of 5,691.

2. American troops invaded the Asia islands off New Guinea and completed the occupation of the three Mapia islands 180 miles to the east.

3. Heavy American bombers scored direct hits on a battleship and a heavy cruiser at Borneo, leaving both exploding and aflame.

4. American warships, striking within 750 miles of Tokyo, have again bombed two islands.

5. A concerted three-day clean-up of Saipan netted 248 Japanese killed and 47 captured.

6. Chinese captured the vital Burma Road city of Mangshih and penetrated Bhamo at either end of their narrowing Burma Road campaign.

7. Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek reshuffled his cabinet in answer to growing criticism of China's war effort.

1,133 Yanks Killed
Gen. Douglas MacArthur gave a breakdown of American casualties in the first month of the central Philippines campaign showing 1,133 killed, 126 missing and 4,332 wounded.

His figure of more than 45,000 Japanese killed or wounded did not include 8,000 believed aboard four transports and six destroyers sunk off Ormoc Bay on November 10 as American carrier planes broke up a large scale enemy reinforcement try.

Nor did it include Japanese naval personnel lost during the crushing defeat of the imperial fleet in Philippine waters October 25.

Ruhr Valley Is Bombed As Doughboys Close in LONDON, Nov. 20.—(AP)—Upwards of 850 American planes today bombed and strafed the Ruhr Valley of Germany, imminently threatened by four advancing Allied armies.

Berlin said other American planes were striking southern Germany from the south for the third successive day.

The Italy-based U. S. 15th Air Force raided southern Germany 600 strong both Saturday and Sunday. On the continent tactical combat units, despite hazardous flying weather, joined in the seething battle up and down the western front.

American and British fighter and medium bombers made 3,000 trips across the frontlines, poured loads of bombs on German communications lines.

U. S. Ninth Air Force Thunderbolts and Mustangs shot down 15 Nazi fighters, blew up 46 locomotives, 300 rail cars and 270 motor trucks.

For the first time, A-26 invader bombers flew with Mustangs and Havocs on tactical missions. Thirteen fighters and two bombers were lost.

French Assault Breaks Through At Belfort Gap

Metz About To Fall to Americans While Yanks Slug Toward

Reach Maas River in Holland

By WILLIAM FRYE
(By the Associated Press)
French troops broke through the historic Burgundy Gap at Belfort and today stood guard on the Rhine, as five other Allied armies sagging German defenses along all the other historic routes of invasion into Germany. It was the week of greatest promise since the Normandy breakthrough.

The enemy line guarding Cologne was bent dangerously by combined American and British power.

The lightning French drive sliced to the Rhine last night near the Swiss border, and men of the First French Army fought within 10 miles of Mulhouse in their sweep cutting behind Belfort. Other units reached the outskirts of Belfort in a direct assault.

The terrific weight of Allied men, armor and firepower began to tell all along the front. "Impregnable" Metz was falling; Patton's armor was wheeling in Germany three miles from the Saar River; Americans were beating into Vosges Mountain passes; the British reached the Maas in southeast Holland.

In the Aachen—and perhaps most significant—sector in the fanatical German stand before the Rhineland cities of Cologne and Dusseldorf had been beaten back from two to four miles along a 15-front under tremendous Amer-

He said Churchill told him he had seen newspaper photographs of Mr. Roosevelt motoring in the rain.

The Bishop, who said he talked with Churchill in the House of Commons after the prime minister's return from Russia, also had a private message for the president which he planned forward.

$858,000 Sixth War Loan Gets Underway Here

CONCENTRATED CAMPAIGN ENDS ON DECEMBER 1

School Bond Sellers To Get Certificates Signed by Gen. Robert Beightler

The $858,000 Sixth War Loan to back up America's millions of fighting men got under way in Fayette County and the nation Monday.

Already nearly 200 Fayette County volunteer workers have started a concentrated house-to-house canvassing calculated to meet the quota here by December 1. The pile of workers' materials in the Dayton Power and Light Company offices has dwindled to only a dozen or so kits, F. E. Hill, chairman of the War Finance Committee, said.

While the bulk of the quota is expected to be met by December 1, the selling pressure by no means will be relaxed for the 15 days from the first of the month until the end of the drive, Hill explained. Those days will be used as a "clean-up" period, for workers to go back and contact people they have missed and for a push to put the county far over its quota.

The Sixth War Loan drive in Ohio is labelled to honor the 37th Division and as part of the recognition given Ohio's own fighting men, certificates will be given school students buying or selling two bonds during the drive giving them the rank of captain. The certificates are signed by Gen. Robert S. Beightler as commander of the 37th division.

The complete organization of the war bond drive here is Hill, chairman; J. Roush Burton, sales and records chairman; Ray Brandenburg, manufacturers and utilities; Ora Middleton, special activities; Mrs. Donald Lange, women's activities with Miss Ann Patton, as co-chairman; Forest F. Tipton, publicity with X. L. Garrison as co-chairman; W. W. Montgomery, rural activities; Carroll Halliday, city sales and A. B. Murray and W. J. Hilty, city and county school sales.

Ward chairmen for the drive are I. Dewey Seidler; H. M. L. Clark and Walter Patton, co-chairman; H. L. George Pensyl and IV. Ambrose Elliott and Mac Dews.

These girls, many of whom have been in Dayton for two-and-a-half years, have no more expenses to pay than local girls, yet are given a bonus of $18.25 weekly.

"These local girls know that the telephone company has been using this procedure to maintain a substandard wage scale with a starting rate of only $21 a week in a city teeming with war industries. They feel this $18.25 weekly paid by the company should be distributed to all of the operators instead of a chosen few."

The company said the following operating centers were affected by the strike: Dayton, Cleveland, Youngstown, Salem, Akron, Toledo, Springfield, Tiffin, Xenia, Findlay, Wellsville, Sandusky, East Liverpool, Steubenville, Bellaire, Martins Ferry, Piqua, Bridgeport, Uhrichsville, Dennison, Fostoria, Miamisburg, Canton, Mansfield Alliance and Massillon.

Mrs. Stitzell pointed out that operators voted 93 to 32 at a meeting Saturday not to join the strike. She said that early Sunday morning the chairman of the local, Miss Hazel Kerr of Columbiana, called a strike for 7:55 A.M. Sunday, despite the no-strike vote.

Mrs. Stitzell challenged the order and notified operators who ordered to quit work that neither the local chairman nor any other officer had any authority to order a strike since two-thirds of those voting Saturday had opposed a walkout.

Eighty-two members reported for a meeting at noon Sunday, Mrs. Stitzell said, and by a show of hands voted in favor of the strike. She said 35 of those attending the meeting returned to work. She said she challenged the meeting as being illegal and not

NO WALKOUT OF OPERATORS IS EXPECTED HERE

Local Operators Are Praised For Sticking to Jobs at Switchboard

Although the Ohio Bell Telephone Company strike has spread to the big industrial centers of northeastern Ohio and a few other points, many of the operators in some of the other areas have refused to walk out in sympathy strike.

The operators of the Washington C. H. switchboard have stuck to their work and present indications are that they will not quit their jobs through the sympathetic strike called following sudden striking of Dayton operators.

Manager Fred Rost, of this district of the Ohio Bell Company, who has been helping man the important switchboard in Xenia, is unstinted in his praise of the operators of the Washington C. H. exchange and they have received praise from officials generally for sticking to their work here.

It was indicated that workers are being imported to man switchboards wherever possible, in order to prevent a breakdown of service.

Over the week end the Ohio Bell Telephone Co. posted the following notice in the Washington C. H. exchange and all other Ohio Bell exchanges throughout Ohio: "Important Notice to Ohio Bell Telephone Company employees: 'Employees of the Ohio Bell Telephone Company who have remained at work or who return to work during the present strike situation, will not lose their jobs because of such action.'"

"It is because of reports to the contrary that the Company makes this announcement."

Miss Kerr declined this morning to give the strike vote, but from other sources it was learned that 64 favored the walkout and 18 opposed it. This left 243 operators not voting.

Long distance phone service has been maintained near normal in the Youngstown district by 40 operators and supervisors who have remained on the job, telephone company officials say.

French troops and armor unhinged the entire German southern flank at the Swiss border and surged into the outskirts of the bypassed fortress city of Belfort in a breakthrough.

American and French troops seized the entrances to four of the six main passes through the Vosges to the Rhine. They are battling 37 miles from Strasbourg, 21 miles from Colmar and 10 miles from Mulhouse, all important cities on the French side of the Rhine.

Third Army forces, crushing Metz in a grip that seized a third of that blockaded fortress city, drew up to the Saar border on a 10-mile front and punched out a five-mile square block of territory in Germany northwest of the Saar and east of the Luxembourg border.

On the Cologne plain three Allied armies fighting on Gen. Eisenhower's most concentrated front had bulged approximately five miles northeast of Aachen since the start of their offensive through the Germans' most formidable and determined defense.

JOY IS SPREAD OVER COUNTY BY HEAVY RAINFALL

Total of .65 of Inch Soaks Into Drought-hardened Farm Lands

Rainfall, which started Sunday near the noon hour and continued most of the night, totaled .65 of an inch at 8 A.M. Monday and the showers were continuing.

In this part of Ohio between 9 and 9:30 P.M. lively snowsqualls took place, according to motorists.

Light snowfall was reported in Fayette County, but it lasted only a short time, reports state.

As the rain fell slowly it penetrated the soil without much of it being drained off.

This brings to around two inches the total precipitation in this vicinity during the past two weeks, and has done much to break the surface drought, but has not replenished wells up to the present time, or started streams to flowing.

aerial reconnaissance disclosed signs of a German withdrawal toward Cologne and the Ruhr.

There was a "decided movement of motor transport eastwards" from the Duren and Julich areas, and many anti-aircraft positions had been abandoned, it was said.

In Holland, the British stabbing to the Maas six and a half miles below Venlo, were feeling out Nazi defenses two and a half miles from the German border and 29 miles from Dusseldorf.

In the southern sectors of the front the French and the Third Army had thrown the Germans into a tailspin.

Front line dispatches indicated a definite German retreat was on to the Rhine and the Saar, boundaries of the Reich.

The First French Army reached the Rhine after racing through the Belfort Gap in an outflanking maneuver which seized all, or most of the high ground on its south side.

There was no immediate report as to where the French were now standing watch on the Rhine, but apparently it was near Mulhouse.

A previous supreme headquarters announcement said they had reached Serpols, 16 miles southeast of Belfort and 18 1/2 miles from the Rhine. Front line reports told of a thrust seven miles farther north and the capture of Dannemarie, 12 miles east of Belfort and 10 miles from the Alsatian city of Mulhouse.

Belfort was almost as badly ringed as Metz.

Enemy resistance was overcome at Fort Le Sultert and at the village of Essert, two miles west of Belfort. Fort Du Mont Vaudois, four miles southwest, also had fallen.

The French rush had carried at least 35 miles in a week in the swiftest drive since the St. Lo breakthrough last July.

North of Belfort the Allies had taken Gerardmer, Racn-L'Etape, Eadonviller and Blamont, leaving only scored St. Die and Fraize blocking the way to six main passes through the Vosges. The Germans said the Americans had fought into St. Die.

The U. S. Seventh Army had captured at least 35 towns in the drive into these gaps.

American troops, capturing Rechicourt, Harbouey, Badonviller and eight other towns southeast of Nancy, moved to within 11 miles of Sarrebourg and into the upper Saar valley.

Among towns captured on the Badonviller-Racn L'Etape front were Cognay, Repaix, Nonhigny, Paru, Montreux, Brenonville and Neufmaison.

The Third Army, closing around Metz at Vallieres and Vaudreville, also entered the northern outskirts of Dieuze, and reached Grostenquin, 11 miles farther north and 21 miles from Saarbrücken, chief industrial city of the Saar. Virming, five miles east of Morhange, was taken in this advance.

The Third Army also was within 20 miles of Saarbrücken on the northwest in the vicinity of Douzonville.

Across the German border northeast of the Saar, Lt. Gen. George S. Patton's men reached Kesslingen and a point a mile beyond Nennig in a drive up the east side of the Moselle frontier of Luxembourg which gave them a grip on a five mile square of Germany.

Service and the Public

That sign which was reported to have appeared on the wall of a certain cafe in another city and which read: "Due to conditions beyond our control, our menus, our service and our attitude are not what they should be" reflects more of the current era than anything we have read in some time.

There are some business enterprises which hold to the idea that a business must earn its right to exist. There are many which have no such philosophy. They merely exist for the purpose of making profit and this is an end to the whole scheme.

In normal times few business enterprises are operated for money only. Most businesses seek to serve, and service to the public must be a factor considered. If this is not the dominant influence of a business in normal times, the public soon recognizes the fact and volume is scaled accordingly. That business which seeks to make money alone cannot, in normal years, hide the fact. Somehow the motivating attitude of any business is shown on the face of the business. There is no need of a sign on the wall to say what is in the hearts of the men and women responsible for the business.

But these are not normal times and hence businesses without a philosophy of service, can exist for a while. But times will return as of old and this philosophy will once again become dominant. This is certain. There is no escape from it. Those business interests which do not feel this way will be compelled to, at least, parade under the banner of service, and if the effort is not sincere, the buying public will recognize the spirit in which the business is operated.

Healthy Frankness

In the last days of the political campaign, when truth and reason were looking decidedly groggy, we came upon two advertisements which renewed our hopes for the survival of those estimable virtues. Turning back to those ads today, now that the hurly-burly's done, we still find them encouraging enough to pass along as a preview of a possible better world to come.

One ad was put out by an aircraft manufacturer, the other by a maker of shaving cream. And both approached their subject with a candor which copy writers commonly shun, apparently on the assumption that such an approach is too true to be good.

The aircraft concern is talking about the helicopter, which it plans to make after the war. Now the helicopter, as everyone knows, has had a tremendous buildup as the air flivver of the future—one smart New York shop has even had a "helicopter fashion show." But here is the gist of what one of its future manufacturers has to say:

"Flying a helicopter is not a job for a novice. . . Helicopters, if they could be purchased on the market today, would be more expensive than the most costly automobile. . . Helicopters are likely to be cost-

Hints on Etiquette

If a woman friend asks you to go to lunch with her sometime, she probably intends it as a Dutch treat affair, and you should go prepared to pay your own bill. If she says, "I would like to take you to lunch on such and such a date," she pays for both.

Today's Horoscope

If this is your birthday, you have positive opinions, but are not argumentative. You keep your own counsel and never violate a confidence. You are trustworthy and reliable, and have much latent ability. Your friends are only those who have similar interests to your own. You should marry early in life. Varied experiences are prognosticated for you in the next year. Gains, expected and unexpected, eventuate, and secret matters are well justified. The reverse applies, however, to domestic and social matters. Moderately lucky in business will be the child who is born on this date. He or she will enjoy the co-operation of employers, but be subject to trouble through elderly females.

ly for some time to come. . . It has not yet been demonstrated that a helicopter is any more safe or less safe than any other aircraft."

The shaving cream people went about selling their wares by stating a painful truth which has too long been avoided. "The word pleasure," they said, "shouldn't even be mentioned in the same breath with shaving. . . the whole business, we say, is at best a nuisance and a bore."

Such talk can scarcely fail to have a healthy effect upon our civilization. Think, for instance, of the sadness and confusion that must have resulted already from the unnatural association of shaving and pleasure. Downy-faced youths have approached the brush and razor with the notion that these symbols of manhood would combine the pleasures of a Turkish bath and massage.

There is no need to dwell upon their disillusionment. Time passed, the beard toughened, and shaving became a "nuisance and a bore." Yet the ads continued to proclaim its pleasures. It was enough to shake a man's faith in things generally.

Now if the same disenchantment can be forestalled in tomorrow's wonderful world of plastics, electronics and family helicopters we shall all be happier. Not that we doubt that these things will come.

But too many people seem to have the idea that because we have been forced to stop our normal progress for the grim business of killing and destruction, we shall immediately step through the looking glass on the day of victory into a new wonderland.

The Tuberculosis Campaign

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M.D.

THE CHRISTMAS seals of the National Tuberculosis Association will soon be on sale. We realize that there are many appeals, especially this year, to give, but the seals do not cost much. If every family would buy a dollar's worth to put on the Christmas mail the amount expected to be raised would be realized.

Dr. Clendening will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

The money really accomplishes something. We are winning the campaign against tuberculosis just as we are winning so many of our campaigns. Victory is, of course, far from complete. There still die every year in the United States from tuberculosis what would represent the population of a fair sized town of about sixty thousand people. This is a loss by a preventable disease—a pure loss, the kind that need not occur. But it is much less than it used to be.

Perhaps as graphic a way to show the improvement as any is to compare the amount of money disbursed by a large insurance company like the Metropolitan in death claims. In 1931, the disbursements of the company for deaths from tuberculosis was 7.3 per cent of the total disbursements; in 1941 it was 4.1 per cent. I cannot find in my files the figures for later years, but have no doubt the improvement is still going on.

Other Diseases

In that same period the disbursements for cancer rose from 10 per cent in 1931 to 14 per cent in 1941, and for heart disease from 15 per cent in 1931 to 18 per cent in 1941, showing that we have far less control over these latter chronic diseases than we do over tuberculosis.

What causes can be ascribed for the improvement in the tuberculosis death rate and incidence? Is it a natural phenomenon or did we plan it that way?

Well, partly it must be admitted that it is a natural phenomenon. Tuberculosis is a disease of poverty, of overcrowded living conditions, of overworked and poor food and bad nutrition. And undoubtedly in North America these conditions have greatly improved. Social reforms have to a certain extent done away with slums. Our housing conditions are better than they were 50 years ago. And in spite of the walls of the experts about how many million Americans are not eating the proper diet, food seems to be pretty well distributed and everybody is getting a fair share. The tendency to a more outdoor life and exposure to sunshine also helps keep down tuberculosis.

Planned Campaign

But undoubtedly the deliberately planned campaign against tuberculosis has done its share. For one thing it is educational. It is no longer considered a disgrace to have tuberculosis. The early symptoms are not disguised with fancy names that are only masks, such as "he has gone into a kind of a decline," or, "winter cough."

More cases are detected earlier, are removed so that they do not contaminate others in the household, and treated at a period in the disease when they can be cured.

Two other plans can be specifically mentioned. One was the elimination of tuberculosis cattle. Thirty, even twenty, years ago the nature of a great deal of human tuberculosis in this country was bovine, from infected milk. The Department of Agriculture rigorously demanded the slaughter of all animals which reacted at all suspiciously to the tuberculin test.

Second, the educational program initiated in 1928 has undoubtedly brought many early cases to treatment. The poster for that year read—"You may have tuberculosis; let your doctor decide. Watch for these danger signs: too easily tired; loss of weight; indigestion; cough that hangs on." That is still good advice.

ALL-OUT MILITARY TRAINING PREPARED

BUENOS AIRES, Nov. 20—(AP)—Argentina is preparing to put into effect a new armed forces statute requiring all citizens of both sexes to begin training for national defense at the age of 12.

The program for girls of 12 to 20 presumably will take the form of athletics and improvement of health standards, while organization of an army auxiliary service is contemplated to absorb women.

Reviewing efforts being made to modernize the Argentine army on the basis of wartime experience, vice president Juan Peron announced yesterday that the new statute divides citizens' military service into pre-conscription, beginning at 12; conscription at 20 with service for two years; and post-conscription membership in the organized reserve.

CHAPTER THIRTY-ONE

Well, I was still shaky, my knees were unsteady. And I was so tired. Craig said then in a less terse way, "You'd better lie down a minute, Miss Keate. What about some brandy?"

The brandy made me think of Maud and her violet sachet and what had happened afterward and I refused to take a shudder. But I told him about Claud Chivery—my whole story, and watched the grim look tighten around his mouth.

"Now then," I added wearily, "you'd better get back to bed. I thought Mrs. Brent was going to stay with you; I wouldn't have left you alone so long."

He was looking at the rug with narrowed, intent eyes that didn't see it. "I thought you ought to have some rest. That's why I didn't send for you. Alexia went away only a moment or two after you left. Miss Keate . . . he looked at me then. "If I could only get out of here . . ."

He started to rise, turned a blue-white, and I sprang forward just as he sat down again on the edge of the chair, clinging to its arms rather desperately.

"Well, you can't," I observed. "I've got to. I know I could do something."

"What?"

"I don't know. But there must be something the police have missed. There must be—well, somebody. Somebody we don't know about . . ."

It was a sinister suggestion. It conjured up a lurking, homicidal figure hidden in some forgotten room, or outbuilding, waiting to pounce.

He stared at the fire and said finally, "You can't hook it up with anybody you know."

I agreed with him not altogether too heartily. At last I asked, "If you were able to get around where would you look for clues?"

"I don't know," he said slowly. "Pete is doing what he can. But I—if only I could be sure that Drue is safe."

"She's all right," I assured him. "That's one advantage of being practically under arrest. She is protected by being guarded."

His eyes clouded again. "Yes," he said. "And that's another danger. If the arrest he can't move. I couldn't get as far as the door without collapsing." He gave a kind of groan and urged, "Tell me everything you saw or heard. Everything. You can trust me."

Which made me wonder if I could. Indeed, after seeing Claud Chivery as I had seen him I would have had a mental reservation about trusting my own image in the mirror.

Still Craig was the one person (besides Drue) who couldn't have killed Chivery.

Well, I answered his appeal as fully as I could by simply repeating, in detail, the events that had taken place since I had left him with Alexia in the late afternoon. He listened intently but asked only a few questions. And eventually I got him back to bed. But he spoke of Drue. "They can't prove anything against her now; had her under guard at the time Claud was murdered."

And just then Drue herself hurried in, closing the door quickly behind her. She was breathing rapidly; there was scarlet in her cheeks and lips and her eyes were bright. She wore her long cape with the hood over her head.

Drue slipped the hood back; her hair was disheveled and she'd been running. She came quickly toward us as Craig cried, "Drue! For God's sake, where have you been?"

"Is it true?" she asked breathlessly. "About Dr. Chivery? I heard them in the servants' living room. I came up the back stairs. What happened?"

I couldn't answer; disappointment was like a vise on my throat, for I had so counted on her alibi. Craig said heavily, "Oh, it's true enough. He's been murdered; in the meadow, north of the house, by that little brook. Drue . . . She was very near us and Craig caught her hand, pulling her so he could look closely in her face. "Drue, where were you?"

"Was out, Craig. I had to get out."

"How did you do it? You were under guard."

"It was easy—he thought I was Sarah. Oh, it doesn't matter."

"It does matter. Tell me exactly what you did. Hurry . . ." His tone was as savage in a queer way as the tight, hard grip of his hands, and as demanding.

Drue said, Wilkins, the other trooper, was relieved. I heard him tell the man who took his place that there were two nurses and not to stop the other one—he told him which door entered your room, Sarah. And from the way he spoke I was pretty sure that the new guard got the idea we were both in our rooms. I had to get outdoors. I was sick with thinking and—oh, I had to get out of this horrible house!"

She checked herself abruptly and her eyes met Craig's fully.

Then Drue looked away. She said stiffly, "So I simply wrapped myself in my cape and pulled the hood over my head, walked out Sarah's door and along the hall. He saw me, but he didn't see my face—anyway, he didn't stop me."

Drue looked at her hands. Craig's eyes were veiled. He said, as stiffly as Drue, "Where did you go?"

"I walked along the little path toward the Chivery cottage. I don't think anyone saw me. . . . Suddenly her voice broke and she cried, terrified and despairing, "Craig, Craig, what is it? Who is it? What dreadful thing is happening here?"

The stiffness that had been like a wall between them broke down with that. She leaned forward swiftly and her arm went around her, drew her down close to him so her face was against his, and he cried softly and shakily, "Oh, my darling, don't be afraid . . ."

Then, in the queerest little hush—as if everything in the world had stopped for an instant, waiting for that very thing to happen—she turned her face and their lips met.

I got up quietly, went to the window and looked out into the winter dusk.

I did wonder after a moment how his wound was making out. Still he had one good arm. And now the course of true love would run smooth . . .

But the next instant I wasn't so sure. For the door opened and Alexia came into the room and stopped. Drue must have heard the door, too, for she sat up quickly, her face radiant and her eyes shining until she saw it was Alexia standing there.

Craig said, "Come in Alexia. What is it?"

Drue with a single sweeping motion, in which the cape fell about her like a shield rose from the bed, and turned to face Alexia, her golden head high.

Alexia's lovely face looked cruel; her eyes gleamed between those drooping eyelashes. She paused for a moment, then she came straight to the bed and stood as near to Craig as was possible, as if by her very physical presence she could separate Craig and Drue.

The widow then announced, "Drue, you'd better know the truth. Craig loves me. Not you. He belongs to me and I belong to him. It's always been that way. You came between us once, but he didn't love you even then."

Drue's eyes blazed. "I was his wife. We loved each other!"

Alexia's voice, husky and vehement, rose over Drue's. "No, he didn't love you. I knew it then. He married you, yes. We'd had a misunderstanding; he did it to hurt me. Just as I, later, married Conrad to hurt Craig. But Craig never loved you."

"I was his wife. . . ."

Again Alexia laughed. "He never loved you. He told me so. He asked me and his father to help him get the divorce."

Craig was as colorless as the pillow; his eyes were closed, his mouth a straight white line. And he didn't say a word.

I said, my hand on Drue's arm, "Go back to your room; I'll come to you. Hurry."

"I'm free now," went on Alexia. "And Craig is free and . . . It was then that Alexia's eyes fastened on Drue's cape; a quick look of speculation changed to one of frank and glittering triumph."

She cried, "So you weren't in your room under guard when Claud was murdered! You were out of the house! You have no alibi!"

Craig opened his eyes. "Drue," he said, in a voice that was as cold and chill as if she were a stranger to him. "I'm sorry. Alexia is quite right about everything. You'd better go back to your room now."

Drue stood perfectly still for a moment. Craig met her eyes across barriers that now, I thought, could never be dissolved. Then Drue said clearly, "I'm going, Craig. And I'm never coming back."

She turned so swiftly toward the door that I had to run to follow her. No one was in the corridor. I didn't speak to her. At the stairway I hurried ahead to look down to the landing with some vague idea of stopping Drue so the trooper wouldn't see her, but he was gone, luckily, for Drue swept down the corridor and into her room. I followed her and said, "Drue—Drue . . ."

"Sarah, don't!"

The little dog was there and came quickly, his tail wagging furiously; I saw he took him into her arms as I turned away and press her white face down upon the wriggling, little brown "Sir Francis." I closed the door behind me.

Cyclops Mountains are now west of Tokyo. That means that if we proceed any farther, it will be just about as close to New York by the western route as it would be to turn east again.

And when that day comes, the day we all say farewell to New Guinea, one will shed a tear. When Fate picked out the battlefields for this Pacific war, she couldn't have done worse if she had looked the world over. The island of New Guinea has been just as stubborn an enemy as the Japs themselves, challenging the right even of survival for those coming to its shores.

The battle against disease, the heat and the insects is constant. Men who have served both in New Guinea and in the Solomons say it is a rat race as to which place is the worst. However, it is quite evident that our forces have won a clear-cut victory over the islands with the Japs clear into the ocean with the other.

UNFIT FOR WHITES

One of the maps that I have carried with me in this tour of the Southwest Pacific Theater gives a vivid thumbnail description of New Guinea. For my final word of this island, I'll quote it instead of giving my own impressions for a "neutral" point of view. It says:

"Outside of the polar regions, New Guinea, the world's second largest island, probably contains more unexplored territory than any other country on earth. It is remote, mysterious—a weird tropical garden, thick with rank undergrowth, palms, bamboos, rotten and slimy vegetation, trailing liana vines, waterfalls, gorges, and limestone cliffs.

"It is smothered in equatorial heat drenched in tropical rains, and literally creeps with malicious insects. It is no place for white men, yet white men are there by the thousands—fighting the jungle and the Japs.

"From its western tip to its eastern extremity the island is 1500 miles long and 400 miles wide at its extreme. . . . Jungle-covered mountains, forming several distinct systems, run the entire length of the island, reaching heights of almost 17,000 feet.

"Many of the coastal regions are swampy grasslands, enormous marshes with thickly growing trees and grotesque vines."

All those quotes are taken directly from "Fighting Yanks Around the World," by Thomas Paffield.

YANKS USE DUTCH MONEY

The American forces in Dutch Guinea use Dutch money. I saw millions of dollars in guilders carried ashore from a transport at Hollandia, to be used in paying the troops.

In Northeast New Guinea and in Papua, both Australian, the troops have used Australian currency, almost identical to the British system. The Dutch guilder is worth 53 cents in American money and corresponds to our dollar.

There are bills of almost any denomination, starting from one guilder. The tens are green on one side and reddish-pink on the other. The 25's are green on one side, brown on the other. The silver is marked 1-10 guilder and 1-4 guilder (roughly, dimes and quarters in our way of thinking).

SOLDIERS CONFUSED

One soldier, counting a handful of the brightly colored Dutch money, complained:

"Just when I get to the place where I can count Australian they give us this stuff. Now I have to learn all over again."

What the men will buy with this money is a moot question, as there really isn't a place to spend

VETERANS' AID TO BE WELFARE MEETING TOPIC

Mrs. Lucille Leach Delegate To Three-day Confab in Columbus

Mrs. Lucille Leach, county representative of the Ohio welfare conference, has just received word that a number of the programs of the annual meeting, to be held in Columbus November 26 to 29, will be devoted to various phases of local, state and federal services to returning servicemen and women.

On Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday afternoons of conference week, a study course will be given for persons actively engaged in programs related to services to war veterans. This course will be led by Dr. Frank E. August, Executive Secretary of the Greater Cleveland Committee for Returning Servicemen, and he will be assisted by Dr. Luther Woodward of the National Committee for Mental Hygiene of New York City; Wade Hamond of the War Manpower Commission of Columbus; and Dr. H. W. Nisonger, Ohio State Council of Defense.

On Tuesday morning, November 28, the division of community organization and the American Red Cross, join hands in a program devoted to "planning for the returning of servicemen." This will take the form of a panel discussion, and among those who will participate are John Ale, Dayton Veterans Facility; Mrs. Kathryn Ellis, Eastern Area, American Red Cross; Col. Spottswood W. Duke, Fifth Service Command; Capt. Lafayette W. Argelsinger, Veterans Personnel Division, Ohio Selective Service; Edward L. Koenig, War Manpower Commission, Ohio; and J. J. Saslavsky, American Legion of Ohio.

On Tuesday evening, at the general session program, a representative of the administration at Washington will give an over-all picture of the Federal program for returning service men and women, and this will be followed by a presentation of Ohio's plans for putting this program into effect. Because of the pressure of responsibilities related to the war, the name of the man from Washington cannot be given until nearer the date of the conference. At this meeting an opportunity will be given for questions from the floor directed to the speakers.

read his proclamations. But neither Wagner nor anybody else knew just how to imitate Hitler's peculiar variation and mingling of Bavarian, Hanoverian and High German dialects. Only a person with a keen ear could discern the real voice from that of many imitators. This German spoke as Hitler did.

Third, the eyes. I have seen no one in whom the whites of the eyes had as deep a bluish tinge as they did in those of Adolf Hitler. The alert American, putting two and two together, has solved one of the greatest mysteries of our time—the disappearance, as Germany collapsed, of the self-styled "greatest military leader of all times."

Adolf Hitler has had his face lifted, his whiskers removed, his nose changed by facial surgery, his hair returned to its natural white for a man of his age, and parted the normal way on the left side. By U-boat or plane he has escaped from his fatherland, and has clandestinely been given refuge by friends under an assumed name and with a seemingly changed personality.

That is one way in which Adolf Hitler may end his career. Two points speak in its favor. He still believes he has a divine mission, which can be facilitated if he takes refuge in another country until he can stage a dramatic return to Germany. And some of his closest associates with whom I have talked regard him as too cowardly either to commit suicide or to face trial.

There is the possibility, nevertheless, of Hitler's taking his life in a fit of despondency. He has been known to become increasingly subject to these fits as his difficulties increased. If he retains his senses until the end of his regime, suicide is not likely to figure in his considerations.

The theory of escape to a neutral country—I am inclined to rule out Japan because Hitler does not

And yet—something in the German's gait, some mannerisms in his speech, something in his eyes keep reminding the American of Hitler. What is it?

First, there is that unusual walk. Nobody in Germany except der Fuehrer strode that way, throwing his leg forward, then giving an extra jerk to lengthen the distance.

Second, the speech. Not that his raucous voice had no imitators. Gauleiter Adolf Wagner of Munich could duplicate that voice so well that Hitler often let him trust the Japanese—rests on the assumption that der Fuehrer will have a say about his own disposition. It is a highly theoretical assumption.

Various other possibilities loom. The United Nations may by good luck or by some carefully planned maneuver seize Hitler before he can make his getaway.

Again, a block buster may hit his armored train or blast his headquarters before he can take refuge.

Either of these eventualities is too good to prove likely.

A revolution of the masses, in which an angry mob might lynch der Fuehrer and his principal collaborators, seems unlikely in view of the frightful hold which the fully armed Gestapo has upon the civilian population.

A revolution from the top has been effectively discouraged by the purges of generals, diplomats, labor leaders, experienced administrators, and others following the attempt, real or staged, upon Hitler's life on July 20.

And yet the possibility of a violent death should not be ruled out. Mussolini was disavowed by his own son-in-law and by such intimate disciples as Dino Grandi and Marshal Emilio de Bono. They did not have to kill their Duce—there was a higher authority, the old king, Victor Emmanuel.

In Germany, there is no higher authority. If Hitler's intimates should decide his elimination is desirable, and should tell him so, he would try to beat them to it by summoning the pretorian guards outside his study and commanding them to "kill the traitors."

Hence, for their own protection, they would have to eliminate him by assassination.

In a weird, unsavory, gangster regime like that erected by the Nazis, things may happen of a kind that ordinarily occur only in Hollywood detective thrillers.

Persons in Germany when I left in 1942 insisted even then that Hitler was dead. They were by no means wild-eyed individuals.

Shortly before leaving the country, however, I had an opportunity to hear der Fuehrer once more. I looked for those mannerisms which would escape even Wagner—such as the way he pronounced the "st" in "sturm."

I concluded that the voice I heard was still that of Hitler.

It is another question whether Hitler may recently have left Germany. His flight could be kept secret a long time.

Against such a possibility, however, I pit his fanaticism and his gambler's belief that luck is just around the corner. My guess—and it is purely a guess—is that Adolf Hitler will not try to get out from under until there is a complete rout of his forces.

A Statement to the Public by The Ohio Bell Telephone Company

On the morning of Nov. 17, telephone operators at Dayton went on strike and established picket lines. This action was followed by sympathy walkouts in a number of other Ohio communities. The strike is still in progress. On the afternoon of Nov. 17, the following telegram was sent by the Regional War Labor Board to the officers of The Ohio Federation of Telephone Workers, Inc.:

"The Regional War Labor Board is informed that members of the Ohio Federation of Telephone Workers, Inc., employed at The Ohio Bell Telephone Company have gone out in strike in violation of national policy of continued production during the war emergency period. The Regional Board is further advised that the strike is over a dispute over an expense bonus paid transferee employees. A dispute case involving this issue has been certified to the National War Labor Board and referred to the Regional Board for action. Both parties have been notified of a hearing scheduled for the week of November 27 before tri-partite panel with independent labor representation from the National Federation of Telephone Workers.

"The Company will be directed to cease any negotiation until the work stoppage has been terminated. The Regional Board, is, however, ready to continue immediate action when full operations have been restored. The Regional War Labor Board unanimously orders that you instruct all members of the Ohio Federation of Telephone Workers, Inc., employed at The Ohio Bell to return to work at once, restore full operation immediately and notify this board of their action. You are further directed to bring the contents of the telegram to the immediate attention of all members of your union. Please wire compliance.

BUCKS KNOCK AT DOOR TO HALL OF FAME NOW

By HAROLD HARRISON
COLUMBUS, Nov. 20.—(P)—Ohio State's Bucks are standing right at the entrance to the 1944 football Hall of Fame.

With eight straight triumphs behind them, they'll meet their old rivals from Michigan here next Saturday and here's what they'll be after:

1. Their first unbeaten and untied regular grid season since 1920.
2. A spot high in the national football ratings and at least a claim to the national championship.
3. Their second Western Conference championship in three years.
4. A possible date to play in the Rose Bowl on January 1.

The last item is contingent, of course, on whether the Big Ten decides next Sunday to lift its ban on post-season games.

The biggest crowd of the season—53,627—watched the Bucks enter up victory No. 8 at Cleveland Saturday with a 26 to 12 decision over Illinois.

The Bucks spotted Illinois a touchdown Saturday and then came back to have the game well under control before they ever let the Illinois reach touchdown territory again.

The game was more or less a personal struggle for Less Horvath and Bob Brugge, a couple of boys who hail from Parma and were performing before a lot of their hometown admirers.

On Sports
By Hugh Fullerton, Jr.

NEW YORK, Nov. 20.—(P)—In case you've never read the major league agreement, about the only limit it places on the commissioner's power is the size of the fines he can assess.

Somewhat, we can't imagine the club owners submitting themselves to such arbitrary power administered by anyone other than Judge Landis.

There's no question about re-electing Landis as long as he wants the job, but a lot of good baseball men don't like the idea of letting the commissioner do anything he pleases, especially with that promise that there'll be no diminution of any commissioner's powers during his term of office.

Challenge Match
The new London Diesels, who claim the industrial football championship of New England on the strength of seven victories—two over the strong New London sub base team—to one defeat and one tie, are issuing challenges to any team they can play without getting back to work late on Monday morning.

The Night Raiders from the Melville, R. I., PT boat base also are having schedule troubles.

From this distance it looks like a natural for a war bond game—the Submarine Builders vs the PT Sailors.

Monday Matinee
When Buddy Bomar, the Chicago bowling ace, recently showed a novice how to pick a ball off the rack, the rookie promptly dropped one on Buddy's foot, breaking a toe.

Invading Bowlers Turned Back in Sunday Matches

Washington C. H. bowlers added to their prestige Sunday afternoon when they turned back an invasion by two teams from Germantown in special 4-game matches on the Main Street alleys.

Hoff's Marketeers took three out of four from the men's team and the Farmerettes duplicated their success against the visiting women.

The Marketeers had their hands full and managed to take the long end of the 4061 to 3824 total scores only after hard pugling. They won the opener by a narrow margin, then dropped the second game with the visitors turning in these best score but turned on the heat to win the last three.

The Farmerettes took the first game by a scant 9 pins but had less trouble in the next two. The girls from Germantown edged the Farmerettes by 20 pins in the third game for their only win of the match.

Wayne Will Meet Frankfort Cagers

Wayne H. cagers have a mid-week game slated for Tuesday night at Frankfort.

The Good Hope basketballers have lost both their games so far this season, although Friday's tilt at Leesburg showed a marked improvement in the Wayne cagers offensive and defensive play.

BOWLING STANDINGS SHUFFLED

The long-leading Tappets were ousted from their spot at the top of the API Men's League to give way to the Office team in last week's bowling. All other league leaders stayed put, however.

As for the rest of the API men, they stayed almost stable, although the Foremen and Engineers were tied up for third place and the Pushers and Production Control were knotted for fifth rating.

Most of the changes in the Women's City League were effected in the lower brackets. The Record-Herald and Morris teams are tied for fourth spot and Light's Dairy and the Business and Professional Women traded places with the Business Women now in fifth place and the Dairy-maids in sixth.

The Gliders and the Helicopters in the API Ladies division were tied at fourth while the Owls marched up one notch to capture the third rating for the league.

Only unprogressive league for the entire week was the Men's City League, with all positions exactly the same. Hoff's Market is leading that string.

Some records chalked up for the season so far are Gene Workman of Wial's Wonders with a 169 high average for the first round of bowling. High single game so far is Hill of Mt. Sterling with 248. Crooks of the Mt. Sterling Keglers has turned in the highest three game total—a juicy 593. To the Washington Producers with their 2652 go the laurels for high match.

sprayed 112 tons of bombs on other shipping in the harbor.

Adm. Chester W. Nimitz announced at Pearl Harbor that American warships caused several explosions and large fires as they bombed Iwo Island briefly on November 10.

Nimitz announced also the recapture of Ngerengong islet in the Palau eight miles northeast of American-held Peleliu.

Marines, paced by 900 dogs, made a thorough mopup of Saipan island in the Marianas at a cost of nine men killed and 40 wounded. The 248 Japanese killed brought the Saipan total to at least 25,392 and the 47 captured increased the total bag to 1,062 captives.

Shake-up in China
Gen. Ho Ying-Chin, minister of war in the Chinese government since 1930, was replaced today by Gen. Chen Cheng in a shakeup involving eight cabinet posts.

O. K. Yui was elevated to vice minister to minister of finance in succession to Dr. H. H. Kung, now in the United States.

Gen. Chen formerly was commander of Chinese expeditionary forces on the Salween front. He is regarded as one of China's ablest field commanders.

The important question to many in the foreign quarter was whether the changes are forerunners of new ones and whether the changes would exert any influence towards a compromise between the government and the Chinese communists.

The reshuffle, while not so extensive as expected in some circles, was reconsidered a response to a popular clamor for reorganization of the government in the face of an increasingly critical military situation.

Chinese Successes
A Central News dispatch today said Chinese troops yesterday recaptured the Burma Road town of Mangshih, 62 miles from the Burma Border and third important objective of the Salween offensive.

The other two main objectives, Tengchung and Lungling—already are in Chinese hands.

The high command yesterday said Chinese troops which took Lungling on November 3 were being reorganized for further action in the Mangshih valley area.

Further to the west in northern Burma Japanese troops yesterday counterattacked with tanks from the key road town of Bhamo in an effort to break Chinese encirclement of the city but were checked after a 400-yard advance.

Recapture of Mangshih further secured the prospective India-China supply route and pipe line now under construction from Calcutta and expected ultimately to extend into Yunnan province.

The next important Burma Road objective in that province is Chefang, 34 road miles southwest of Mangshih.

SENTENCED TO DEATH

FREEZING OF WAR WAGES SCORED BY BOSS OF CIO AT CONVENTION OPENING

commented:

"The only effective job that has been done by the War Labor Board during the past year is to freeze wages. In that field, its operations have been beyond reproach from any employer."

For the post-war period, Murray proposed raising personal exemptions in individual income taxes to aid lower paid workers, but suggested continuation of the present tax rates on corporations and personal incomes above $5,000 a year.

He would make an exception of corporations whose net incomes are below $100,000 a year.

AFL IN SESSION TOO NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 20.—(P)—American Federation of Labor delegates, claiming representation of 6,818,400 American workers, met in annual convention here today, their post-war policies and aims already announced in an executive council reports and in a week of pre-convention departmental sessions.

The executive council in its annual report, released this morning, held the door open for AFL affiliates to return to the AFL, and, while denouncing CIO leaders and what it termed their "raiding policy," expressed hope that the two labor groups might not enter the post-war period "divided, disunited and fighting each other."

Concerning AFL general policy, the council advocated higher wages, better medical care and better housing for American workers, and a lasting peace to "rest on social justice and to include all people."

GRAIN MARKET NEWS SUMMARY

CHICAGO, Nov. 20.—(P)—Rye broke a cent and more today and most of the rest of the grain futures list was fractionally lower in quiet trading. Except for professional selling of rye, offerings were not heavy.

Wheat dropped near the close to new lows for the session under scattered selling attributed to the setback in rye and to easeiness of the Minneapolis market where increased cash offerings were reported. On the decline a local professional operator bought substantial amounts and the market steadied.

SALE OF HEALTH SEALS TO START ON NOVEMBER 27

Urgent Need of Full Public Support Is Seen All Over Nation

Mrs. Marguerite Powell, executive secretary of the Fayette County Tuberculosis and Health Association, said Monday that the 40th anniversary seal sale opens Monday, Nov. 27, not only in Fayette County but throughout the nation, and strong support of the sale is being urged on the part of the public.

Fayette counties each year have given liberally toward this important movement to wipe out tuberculosis and improve health conditions generally.

Floyd A. Rowe, Cleveland, president of the Ohio Public Health Association, is expecting the greatest response in recent years, due to the need of funds to carry forward the work.

This year's Christmas Seal carries a modernistic picture of a postman holding an envelope in his upraised hand. The postman design, according to Postman Rowe, was selected in memory of Einar Holboell, Danish postal clerk, who first had the idea of selling Christmas Seals to raise funds to help the sick.

"During the 40 years following the first Seal Sale, 61 countries have used Holboell's idea to support their fight against tuberculosis," Rowe said. "In this country 2,500 groups have become affiliated with the National Tuberculosis Association to work for tuberculosis control in cities, towns and villages in every state. The past 40 years have seen tuberculosis deaths cut from 12 in every 100, to 4 out of 100 deaths in the United States. That is a good record, but we have no right to gloat when we realize that tuberculosis still kills one person every nine minutes and is the first disease killer of persons between the ages of 15 and 45."

"The wonderful thing about Holboell's Christmas Seal is that it has brought millions of people into this fight against the White Plague. Everyone who purchases a Seal enlists in the battle against one of the worst diseases which has ever sapped the strength of men."

EVERY METER IN USE SATURDAY DURING RUSH

All of the 240 Meters Now In Service in the Business Area

Saturday, the first big day in the city since the installation of the parking meters, found every meter in use most of the time during the afternoon and until 10 o'clock at night.

Over Sunday the remainder of the meters were installed, and 240 are now in use.

While various expressions regarding the meters were overheard, general opinion was that they will be popular here, as they have proven elsewhere, after the public becomes accustomed to them.

A large number of citations were given out Saturday as the parking meters are in use up until 10 P. M. on Saturdays in an effort to help solve the parking problem.

Many double parkers were moved on by the police instead of being cited at the present time.

No collection of $1, the fee for violating the ordinance governing the parking meters, was made Saturday, and none has been collected so far, but it is understood the collecting of $1.00 may start any time.

Monday morning some of the meters were not working, and investigation disclosed that the coin boxes were filled and the coins had backed up until the tripping device would not work.
